Master's Programme

SPEECH AND LANGUAGE THERAPY

The Master in Speech and Language Therapy is a Swiss-recognised professional qualification that gives access to the profession of speech and language therapist (logopédiste). Situated at the crossroads of psychology, language sciences, educational sciences, neurosciences and medicine, it places great emphasis on clinical training, while providing a solid scientific foundation through academic teaching and research activities. Its aim is to train students in the scientific study and practice of the main professional activities of speech therapists in the field of verbal and non-verbal communication disorders, oral and written language, speech, voice, swallowing, the orofacial sphere and numerical cognition in people of all ages in educational and medico-therapeutic contexts. These activities include advice and prevention, assessment and diagnosis, as well as support and management of the disorders described above.
