Restraints on Treaty-Making Powers of EU Member States

MERCREDI 27 MAI 2026

14H15 - SALLE 3050 - UNI MAIL

When acceding to the European Union, Member States retained their capacity to conclude treaties under international law. Yet, the European Union's constitutional framework imposes significant restraints on that freedom. How, and to what extent, the European Union constrains Member States' treaty-making powers is the central question this dissertation addresses.

Jury : Prof. Evelyne CLERC, Université de Neuchâtel, Prof. Merijn CHAMON, Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgique, Prof. Robert KOLB, Prof. Christine KADDOUS (directrice de thèse), sous la présidence du Prof. Luc THÉVENOZ, doyen de la Faculté de droit.
