

The Institute of Environmental Sciences of the University of Geneva has an opening for a full-time post-doctoral position (“Maître Assistant”)

Links between Cities and the Environment (teaching and research activities)

This is a full-time position that will enable the successful candidate to conduct research and teaching (especially through active participation in workshops and tutorials) in the University of Geneva’s Master’s programs in Environmental Sciences and also in Urban and Territorial Planning. In terms of research, we are looking for candidates with expertise in the links between Cities and the Environment.

In addition to expertise that could be included within this generic title, we are looking for candidates who may have specific competences in one of the following domains: sustainable Urban Development; Urban and Territorial Planning; instruments for project development; Urban Planning in Cities of the South; Cities and Nature; Cities and Energy; Cities and Mobility.

The position now open is also aimed to foster significant research activities in one or more of these domains.

Prior experience and academic titles

A Doctorate in a relevant field of the Social Sciences

Publications in the international peer-reviewed literature

Competence in the building up of research projects and university teaching programs, as well as a post-doctoral experience abroad, would be an advantage

Deadlines

Applications, including cover letter, curriculum vitae, copies of diplomas and certificates, list of publications, should be filed online by May 15, 2015, to the following address:

Website Emplois à l’UNIGE

The position will be filled from August 1, 2015, or on a mutually-acceptable date.

Class of maximal remuneration : 17 (annual gross salary from CHF 92'832.00, the rate in force)