SEMINAR SERIES SPRING 2024

Haute école de travail social -
HETS Genève, Room C004

The Intermigra Lab seminars aim to foster exchanges between researchers from the three academic institutions based in Geneva (University of Geneva, Geneva Graduate Institute and Geneva School of Social Work) and from different disciplines (sociology, anthropology, geography, social work, political science, demography, etc.) on issues related to migration, mobility, inequality, different forms of othering and racialization, discrimination and racism to which so-called minorities may be subject, with a focus on an intersectional and multidisciplinary approach.

The Intermigra Lab organizes a monthly seminar during which researchers present their work (research, publications, training modules, etc.) which may be at various stages of progress. These meetings, open to all interested parties, provide an opportunity for constructive exchange on different themes between people at different stages of their academic careers.

The Intermigra Lab also intends to bring together associations, institutions and political representatives working in the field of migration and racism once a year to discuss recurring and emerging issues with researchers and put forward recommendations for public policy.

Program :

5:30-7:00 pm : Presentations and discussions

7:00-8:00 pm : Informal discussions and drinks
