The Faculty of Translation and Interpreting (FTI) is one of the most experienced and renowned centres for translation and interpreting education and research in the world. ReMeTIS is its online doctoral programme, which is composed of four individual courses (of 50-60 learning hours each):

- 1. Course 1: Exploring Translation and Interpreting Studies — research questions and ethics (9 March - 17 April);
- 2. Course 2: Qualitative Methods — design and analysis of qualitative research (18 May - 19 June);
- 3. Course 3: Quantitative Methods — statistical analysis, survey design, and data interpretation (14 September - 16 October);
- 4. Course 4: Corpus Studies — compilation, analysis, and interpretation of corpora to explore linguistic patterns and translation phenomena (16 November - 18 December).

Participants will have access to reading materials, individual feedback, discussion threads and plenary lectures, and will be able to organise their work according to their individual schedules.
