The challenge of entering the interpretation labour market can be a complex process, and making this transition without the proper experience can make the process even harder. The authors are two professional interpreters and lecturers presenting an ongoing project of how they create bridges between these two worlds together with their students and the HEI.

.04 - Bibliography

