

UNIVERSITY OF GENEVA, Geneva, Switzerland.

The University of Geneva has an opening for a “maître assistant(e)” (the equivalent of a fixed-term lecturer) in the Department of History, Economics, and Society in the Geneva School of Social Sciences. He/ she will be required to teach courses in economic and social history (maximum of 4 hours per week), to correct and grade student papers, to proctor and correct exams and to provide guidance to students in the preparation of their Bachelor projects and Masters’ theses.

The successful candidate must demonstrate a strong research capacity in the field of economic and social history. A wide variety of specialties in this field will be considered including, but not limited to, the history of Switzerland, the history of statistics, the history of economic ideas and policies, the history of work, as well as the history of international organizations. The candidate must hold a Ph.D. in the field of economic history, history, economics or another social science.

Candidates should speak both French and English fluently. She/he should be available to begin his/her contract from August 1, 2018. An initial contract will be signed for 3 years and may be renewed, subject to a performance review, for a further period of 3 years.

The application deadline is April 12, 2018.

CONTACTS: Professor Mary O'Sullivan, Professor of Economic History and Chair of the Department of History, Economics, and Society (mary.osullivan@unige.ch).

For the formal announcement of this opening, the list of supporting documents required as well as further information, please see https://jobs.unige.ch/www/wd_portal.show_job?p_web_site_id=1&p_web_page_id=32661